The Mass is ended...go forth....and do what? We have come to the end of Mass, we have come from separate lives, gathered together as one in God's house, stood together in solidarity of faith. We have heard God's Word and listen to His command to love each other selflessly through prayer and giving of ourselves. We have gathered together for a meal, no ordinary meal!

We are now sent forth....but to what and for what? Isn't that the $10,000,000 question?

Do we leave God's house and just continue to live our ordinary lives, become anxious over our everyday challenges? Do we continue being the kind of people who get angry at the driver who cuts us off, or impatient at the drive-through clerk, who is trying her best? Do we continue to turn a blind eye to those who need our help and encouragement? Do we put up walls to keep out those who are different from us and our beliefs? Is it life as normal? Or is it something else?

These final words from the priest or deacon aren't a fancy way to say good-bye and have a nice day. They are filled with deep meaning for us. As we leave God's house, as we are sent forth—we are changed, we are more mindful of God's presence and grace in our lives. We go forth in peace, the peace the world can not give—the peace that surpasses all understanding. We go forth as the living and breathing body of Christ, to make our world, our existence, our lives and all the lives of those around us a more loving, compassionate, forgiving and understanding world. Go and proclaim the Gospel with your lives.

As we become more aware of what these words of the Mass mean to our worship and our everyday living, may this mindfulness continue into our daily living once we have gotten up out of the pew and down the steps and through the doors of the church into our everyday lives. May we always be mindful of God's infinite love and mindful of how we share that love with others.

Synod Update – Walking Together

The Final Report from the Diocesan phase of the Synod is now available in English and French on our website
<https://www.padiocese.ca/synod2023>

The prayer and consultation that took place during this Diocesan phase identified six main priorities for our parishes to focus on. These were condensed in the conclusion of the report:

1. Ongoing opportunities for listening to each other to continue healing and reconciliation in our parishes as we become more a Church that journeys together, particularly, with our Indigenous brothers and sisters.
2. Ongoing opportunities for learning how to listen to the voice of the Holy Spirit as parishes and the diocese discern the path forward at this time. Continuation of the synodal journey that has begun.
3. Initiatives that will teach us how - with trust in the Holy Spirit - to accompany others where they are at on their faith journey especially those who feel separated or marginalized in our communities and schools.
4. Greater emphasis on outreach to those in our parishes who need support and those in need in our communities both local and global.
5. Ongoing faith formation for all age groups focused on kerygmatic catechesis, which includes opportunities for encountering Christ.
6. Ongoing formation for clergy and parish leadership to aid in the implementation of these initiatives in areas such as liturgy, RCIA, the new Directory for Catechesis, accompaniment. evangelization, etc.

As a way of moving forward together, each parish will reflect on the Final Report and then we will be invited to prayerfully make some choices.

All parishes will be expected to choose 2 of the initiatives to focus on in the 2022-2023 pastoral year. We will submit these choices to the Diocese and then we will consider our choices at the Diocesan Pastoral Council Meeting on October 29th in Prince Albert.
